According to South Dakota law, it is the responsibility of the purchaser to assure that the goods and/or services purchased for resale are covered by a resale certificate. If items covered under the resale certificate are not purchased for resale, it is the responsibility of the purchaser to indicate to the seller that the items will not be resold, and the appropriate sales tax should be collected on those items. The seller is required to show good faith in accepting this certificate. Sellers must possess a properly completed resale certificate provided by the purchaser. Sellers accepting resale certificates for purchases they know are not legitimately for resale could be held responsible for any sales/use tax due.

If the purchaser purchases for resale but later uses the item(s) rather than reselling it (them), the purchaser is responsible for reporting and paying use tax on the item(s). Any purchaser who knowingly and intentionally lists items for resale that he/she knows will not be resold, or provides an invalid resale certificate with the intent to evade payment of the tax is guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor and may be fined up to fifty percent of the tax owed in addition to paying the tax.
